

Oregon Writers Colony

Is proud to present

A Writing Workshop conducted by Lynn Price

Saturday, August 13, 2011 9:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Meeting Room at Rockaway Beach City Hall
Workshop cost- $40

Lynn Price understands writers, editors and publishing because she has experience in all aspects of the publishing business and she is an excellent teacher. Some of the promises she makes to her students are: "When you leave this workshop you will understand that the elements of writing can be the editor's side of the red pen. She is the editorial director of Behler Publications [behlerpublications.com] in Southern California— a successful independent trade press that is focused on fiction and nonfiction. She speaks at conferences, workshops and seminars throughout the country using material based on her book The Writer's Essential Tackle Box. In addition she also holds pitch sessions to look for fresh, talented voices. Behler Publications publishes best selling and critically acclaimed works chronicling personal journeys with socially relevant themes: stories that deal with how people are influenced and changed by their experiences and how they deal with those repercussions. Price says, "Our books invite introspection. We want our readers to say, I'm a better/more thoughtful/smarter person for having read this book."
