Larry's recent how-to book Story Engineering: Mastering The Six Core Competencies of Successful Writing, on story structure published by Writers Digest, enjoyed the top spot on Amazon.com for books of its type for several weeks after it was released.

Now, OWC brings Larry back to Portland for a special two-day command performance to explain and illustrate his approach on structuring fiction, and to underscore its importance in novels and screenplays.

Larry is a popular teacher and his method has intrigued and helped countless writers all over the country, evidenced by his website Storyfix.com, and his frequent blogs on the craft of writing. In fact, he was chosen Numero Uno among the country's Top Ten Bloggers on writing. Don't miss this wonderful opportunity!
